WILL HAVE TO WAIT FOR THEIR PAY.

Washington, July 29. The sailors from Sampson's fleet, who participated in the destruction of the vessels of Cervera's squadron, will probably have to wait some time for their prize money. The navy department had prepared lists of all the crews of the Spanish vessels and of the vessels of our own fleet that participated in the engagement, who were entitled to prize money, for the use of the auditor of the treasury in settling the accounts, but the treasury department officials in their care to prevent any misapprehension of the funds, acquired that they be supplied with further detailed information, and this request has necessitated the return of the lists to the North Atlantic fleet off Santiago for amendment.

[illegible]

Chicago, July 29. The first definite statement was made today as to how yellow fever was brought into the ranks of the American army in Cuba. Mr. H. L. Beach, who represented the Associated Press among the fighting lines at Santiago and who has just returned to Chicago, made the statements as follows:

It is an actual fact—something I saw with my own eyes—that our army ambulances were used to carry Cuban refugees who had fled from Santiago and who were carrying the germs of dread fever with them. When Gen. Shafter sent word to Santiago that he intended to bombard the city the people all began to flee, and most of them went to El Caney. This is a town of about 500 people, but 15,000 refugees went there and occupied the houses in which there was room for only 500. The town was overflowing, there was no food for the Cubans and the army had not enough to spare. So these people had to go out and forage for themselves. Santiago is known as the worst fever port in Cuba and these people who did not carry it with them soon had it, for their condition, huddled together as they were, was terrible and brought on the pest almost immediately. I know it to be a fact, having seen it myself, that the military ambulances were used to haul these refugees from El Caney so they might get food. The people waded through the mud and were picked up by the ambulances. Then our sick and wounded were hauled in the same ambulances. But worst of all, it seems to me, is the fact that the commissary wagons, which always were going to Siboney and back carrying food, went out with food and returned loaded with refugees and went back again loaded with food.

Washington, July 29. The navy department has posted the following bulletin:

St. Thomas, July 29, U. S. S. Massachusetts, Ponce, Porto Rico, July 28, Commander Davis with Dixie, Annapolis, Wasp and Gloucester left Guanica July 27 to blockade Ponce and capture fighters for United States army. City of Ponce and Playa surrendered to Commander Davis at noon upon demand at 12.30 A. M., July 28. American flag hoisted at 6 A. M., 28th. Spanish garrison evacuated. Provisional executive of surrender until acceptance by army, first garrison to be allowed to retire, second, civil government to remain in force, third, police and the brigade to be maintained without arms, fourth, captain of port not to be made prisoner. Arrived at Ponce from Guanica with Massachusetts and Gloucester, Generals Miles and Gen. Wilson and transport at 6.40 A. M., 28th. Commenced landing army in captured sugar lighters. No resistance. Troops welcomed by inhabitants great enthusiasm. Captured sixty lighters, twenty sailing vessels and 120 tons of coal.

U. S. CONSUL PARTRIDGE THREATENED BY SPANIARDS.

London, July 29. Mail advices from Tangier, Morocco, today say that the threats of the Spanish residents there caused the house of Mr. F. C. Partridge, the retiring United States consul, to be guarded before he left, and in addition his successor, Mr. Samuel Gummere, was escorted to the consulate, which is still guarded by Moorish troops.

One American family which had been residing at Tangier went to Europe, fearing violence.

The conduct of the 5000 Spaniards generally has been calm, though there have been a few threats to cut the cable in order to prevent Commodore Watson from using it and in order to interfere with the provisioning of his squadron.

The French steamer Olla, which recently touched at Tangier with refugees from the Canary Islands, reported that the foreign consuls at the Canaries had notified the subjects of their governments that Commodore Watson's squadron was coming and the people there, for a time, were panic-stricken and were seeking refuge in the interior of the islands.

NO CONDITION TO RESIST US.

Paris, July 29. A correspondent of the Temps at San Juan de Porto Rico today criticised the insufficiency and condition of the equipment of the Spanish troops in Porto Rico. He says that if fighting occurs it will amount to little, as the Spaniards are in no condition to resist the Americans.

ANOTHER EXPEDITION SAILS.

San Francisco, July 29. The transport steamer St. Paul, bearing the first battalion of North Dakota volunteers, the Minnesota and Colorado recruits sailed for Manila today.

MOVEMENT OF CHICKAMAUGA TROOPS.

Chickamauga National Park, July 29. The first South Carolina regiment broke camp this morning and marched to Rossville, where the southern railway trains for Jacksonville, Fla., were taken. No other commands there yet received moving orders, but it is believed that the first brigade, second division, first corps, will go out early next week. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the wagon train of the third division of the first army corps went out on review on the Sixth-Waite field. The scene was very picturesque. The wagon train was three miles deep, as follows: First South Carolina, fourth Massachusetts, first New Hampshire, 12th Minn., 12th New York, second Missouri, fifth Penn., 21st Kansas, ninth Penn. This was in brigade formation, the first South Carolina being on the left and the 5th Penn. on the right. Each regiment had 27 wagons, making 248 in all. To each wagon was attached four mules. Each wagon was packed with camp equipment and had a cot, done for movement to the front, could have started on half a second's notice. The ambulance corps had the rear of line. Gen. Sanger reviewed the train. The procession was well executed.

Washington, July 29. Nearly 5 hours earnest discussion today by the President and his constitutional advisers of the reply of the U. S. to be made by the government to the Spanish overtures for peace, brought no conclusion and the matter was necessarily postponed for further consideration at another meeting of the cabinet to be held at 10.30 tomorrow morning. Such was the formal statement of the situation made at the conclusion of the day's work by each member of the cabinet, who was questioned upon the subject. A final conclusion, however, is much nearer than this statement would seem to indicate and indeed there is little reason to doubt that an agreement has been reached upon all the substantial points at issue and that what remains to be done tomorrow is rather to smooth away inequalities and adjust some minor points of difference before making an answer expected by M. Cambon.

The points under discussion during the greater part of the meeting was what disposition should be made of the Philippines. On the other issues unanimity developed.

There was to be independence demanded for Cuba, Porto Rico was to be ceded to the United States, coaling stations were to be acquired at Guam, in the Ladrone Islands and in the Caroline Islands. These propositions were disposed of quickly, but when it came to the Philippines some diversity of opinion was revealed.

As near as can be gathered this did not relate mainly to the retention of the islands on which proposition a majority of the cabinet was specially recorded in the negative. But accepting the broad proposition that Spain was to be allowed to keep these possessions other questions of importance developed and it was felt that these must be answered definitely before the subject could be disposed of.

There was no question as to the propriety of demanding a coaling station in the Philippines and, while there reasonably might be a difference of opinion as to the location and extent of this station, little difficulty was expected to be encountered in solving that problem because the matter could be referred to the naval war board, whose members are competent to deal with the subject.

GOVERNMENT IN PHILIPPINES.

The perplexing problem was what form of government should be instituted in the Philippines and what should be the nature of the guarantee required of Spain that the new government should be liberal and autonomous in character. These two questions hinged on the primary decision to interfere at all in preserving a change in the conditions in the Philippines. Some members of the cabinet felt that the insurgents under Aguinaldo, having acted independently of the United States from the very beginning of the insurrection and having lately shown a disposition to make trouble for us, had no moral claim upon the United States in the settlement of the Spanish war. On the other hand it was urged that our government should lose no opportunity to extend its principles throughout the world and this that could be done in the present case by requiring Spain to extend genuine autonomy to the Philippines.

It was on such points as these that the discussion prevailed all day. A point which was quickly established was that there should be no reference of any phase of the question of the disposition of the islands to any concert or individual action by outside powers.

Another point that was settled, though there will be no formal action was that no protest against the continuance of military or naval operations pending the peace negotiations would avail in the slightest, that there would be no armistice, no suspension of operations, nor any modification whatever of the present plans until the Spanish government had agreed to the terms proposed.

SPANISH AUTHORITY MUST CEASE.

Incident to the cession of Porto Rico and the recognition of Cuban independence by Spain was the decision that every vestige of Spanish authority in the Caribbean and West Indian waters must be removed, affecting a material acquisition of numerous islands over which the Spanish flag flies, one of the most important of which is the Isle of Pines. Furthermore, this sweeping change of authority from Spain to the United States in our nearby waters is to be effective also as a quit claim of all indebtedness assumed by Spain and charged by her to those islands, so far as the United States is concerned, and commercial treaties now existing between Spain and her possessions there and outside powers are extinguished.

Some discussion was had as to the probability of the Spanish acceptance of our terms. The views offered, though it can be stated that several of the most influential members of the cabinet believed that the terms substantially agreed upon would not be accepted by Spain at once. While believing that the proposals made should in all reason constitute the minimum to be considered, some expressed the belief that Spain would not be immediately disposed to reach an agreement on them and that possibly considerable time would elapse before that government would be ready to yield, meanwhile seeking a compromise which, it was asserted, was not to be entertained for a moment. Others took the ground that there was every indication that Spain had decided to make terms and that what was now proposed would soon be acceded to to avoid further disaster.

MANILA SURRENDER UNCONFIRMED.

One factor in the protracted discussion of the Philippine problem was the absence of advice as to the existing situation there on this date, a point that might be of considerable importance in the adjustment of the question. The news of the other Spanish possessions unconfirmed dispatch reporting Manila had surrendered was commented on as indicating that definite action without knowledge of the exact situation at Manila, might cause a statement regarding conditions that will not exist. The formal papers crystallizing the results of the two sessions today, will be ready for action tomorrow. A formal vote will then be had and the answer of this government is likely to be communicated to Spain before nightfall.

The most important news received at the war department today was the cable despatch from Gen. Miles announcing the excellent progress being made in southern Porto Rico and the capture of Ponce. The navy department also received a cable announcing that the navy has captured the city of Ponce and landed the forces under Gen. Miles. Both departments are much satisfied with what has been accomplished and the tone of both despatches indicate that the rivalry between the army and navy for honors in the Spanish war is not at an end. The department expects an easy conquest of Porto Rico, and notwithstanding the overtures for peace made by Spain, the war will be prosecuted vigorously in that island.

The belief in general in the war department is that Gen. Merritt has landed in Manila, though no cable information to that effect has been received. The fact that Merritt sailed a month ago and has had ample time to reach Manila is the ground for the belief in the department.

THE SICK AND WOUNDED.

The care of the sick and wounded and steps looking to their greater comfort engrossed officers of the war department during the day. An officer has been despatched to Montauk, L. I., to prepare a hospital for the sick of Gen. Shafter's army when they shall have arrived again in the United States. Orders also have been issued looking to the accommodation of sick soldiers on furlough, enabling them to visit their sources and return with greater despatch and convenience.

It has been determined to send a commission to visit hospitals of various army corps with a view of ameliorating the condition of the sick. A surgeon of the army and Major Hopkins, of the adjutant general's office, will compose this commission with perhaps another officer of the army.

Major Hopkins is Gen. Alger's military aide. The surgeon general's office is also considering the advisability of allowing a number of women as nurses in the hospitals at the large camps. The surgeon general has been averse to having women nurses in the field, but it is said that the large rendezvous camps cannot be considered as field service and the objection to women does not apply as it would in active service.

Gen. Shafter was heard from this afternoon in a message relating to the transports in Santiago which are wanted to carry additional forces to Porto Rico. He reported that they were being unloaded as fast as possible and that the Yucatan, Alleghany, Comal and San Marcos sailed for Tampa yesterday, while the Seguranca, Miami and Matanza were to sail today. The department wants at least three of those boats at once at Tampa to load on the artillery and cavalry of Coppinger's division.

Gen. Coppinger said today that so far these troops have left Camp Tampa: 11th and 10th infantry, under Gen. Schwan; batteries C., and M., of the 7th artillery; troop B., 2nd Cavalry and troop A., fifth cavalry.

The following troops are waiting transportation: Batteries R and M., fifth artillery; E., 8th, H., 7th and O., of the 4th, the fifth infantry, fifth cavalry, Gen. Hudson's brigade, consisting of the second Georgia, 4th Maryland and 1st Florida, and Gen. Snyders headquarters as well as the division headquarters.

Santiago, July 28, 3.10 P. M. (delayed in transmission). A panicky feeling prevails in the business circles owing to the fear that the Americans will turn the city over to the Cubans for self government.

No confidence existing, owing to the uncertainty of the future. Orders that were given during the first days of the American occupation have been countermanded by cable. Even European merchandise on through bill of lading via New York, has been ordered, transshipped and sold in New York even on a single order.

A faint idea may be formed of the extent to which Sebastopol was fired upon by the allied military and fleets when it is stated that from a mass of 12 cents per hundred weight, which the Russian government levied upon the proceeds of the sales of old iron shot and shell picked up and sold by the people, a sum of nearly $75,000 was realized.

A Woman's Experience with This Great Medicine.

"I have had Hood's Sarsaparilla in my family for many years and have been kept in good health by its use. A few years ago I had a heart trouble and I was advised not to work too hard, as it was a critical period in my life. This was impossible as I was not able to hire my work done. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and it kept me in good health through this period. I was able to do my housework besides running a sewing machine as I did in my younger days. Whenever I get to feeling tired and languid and cannot sleep at night, I get a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and it does me good. My son had erysipelas and was weak and without appetite. After taking Hood's he was well and able to work every day." MRS. ALMIRA HILL, Lymar, Maine.

New York, July 29. The funeral services over the body of the late Sergt. There was a tremendous crowd in the vicinity of the church when the service began and many were unable to enter the building.

London, July 29. The weekly papers credit the United States with a desire to deal generously with Spain. The Saturday Review says:

"We are convinced that America will not play the part of Shylock but now she has learned to appreciate the bravery and fighting qualities of the Spaniards, as well as the worthlessness of the Cuban rebels, she will make obvious atonement for the precipitancy with which she entered upon the war by dealing generously with her opponents."

The Spectator urges the United States to assume direct control of both Cuba and the Philippines. It implores the Washington government rather to break an injudicious pledge to Congress than to allow Cuba and the Philippines to be independent or to return to the cruel Spanish domination.

"Since it is equally inadmissable," says the Spectator, "to grant independence or to transfer the Philippines to any other power, it is best that the United States should assume the heavy responsibility involved, which will serve to bring out the best qualities of the American nation. England does not desire the Philippines, and if she did she would not take them because she wishes to prove that her sympathy for the United States is quite disinterested."

The Spectator devotes another article to a eulogy of the splendid and unexpected manner in which Mr. McKinley has risen to the requirements of a high and difficult position.

"The President has developed talents showing him the possessor of many of Lincoln's great qualities. It would be remarkable," the Spectator continues, "if for the second time in a generation the American system, really the elective monarchy, proved itself a strong system for dealing with a dangerous system."

WOMEN

Contemplating insuring their lives are sometimes tempted to listen to the alluring voice of the solicitor of assessment insurance, the seeming "cheapness" of the policy taking their fancy. As the years go on the cheapness is less in evidence the luckless women being subject to a continuous rise in rates. Of course they can drop out of the ranks and cease the payment of premiums, but by so doing all the money previously expended is swallowed up by the concern. Naturally a woman will continue for some years to pay up rather than lose her hard earned money, but the further she goes, however, is not to accept a life insurance policy that offers cheapness at the expense of reliability, but to purchase rather the genuine article from Boston, July 29. Late this afternoon the roof of the new plant of the Electric Lighting Co., in process of construction on the corner of First and West First streets, South Boston, collapsed, carrying down seven or eight men, who were working upon it. Morris Bowen and James Sullivan, both colored, were crushed by the timbers and probably instantly killed.

Bowen's body was taken out of the ruins within a few minutes after the accident occurred, but Sullivan's was found five hours later that of Sullivan's was recovered.

SPAIN HAS NOT ASKED AN ARMIST CE.

London, July 30. The Madrid correspondent of the Daily News says that according to a newspaper statement, Senor Gullon, Spanish minister of public instruction and public works, said in the course an interview in Madrid yesterday: "Spain does not asked an armistice or even of suspension of hostilities. That would be tantamount to surrendering the only trump we have in our hand. We shall never come to that. The message to the United States which recommends the subject of the Cuban forces and their surrender is outlined in terms so qualified that what the document is published in one will be able to say it is humiliating. It is still another thing for United States to discover whether the people of Spain are willing to accept the conditions which contain the sentiment of the government.

MAN MISSING.

An Oldtown report says that detectives have been searching the timber camps and following the drives in the hope of finding Garfield Boomhauer, a young man who came from his home in Schoharie Centre, New York, late last fall, and was presumably hired out with a Bangor employment agent to go into the woods. He went into Page's clothing store in Bangor last October and purchased a shirt.

Last week Dennis Tracey visited the East Branch drive. From information received here Tracey is inclined to think that Boomhauer quit the drive July 9, saying he was going home to New York. The family has offered a reward.

The police arrested three or four fellows in Pickering square last night for drunkenness. It was a rather busy night for the officers, for some reason a number of convivial spirits awaking out at the same time. A woman was among the victims.

WE [illegible] THE [illegible] OF [illegible]

London, July 30. A special despatch from Madrid says: Though it is not likely that the government will decide to prolong the war because of Porto Rico, considerable feeling is manifested and every possible diplomatic effort will be made to retain it.

Apparently there is little objection to ceding a coaling station in the Philippines provided Spanish sovereignty is respected in the islands, which in the opinion of the government and official circles generally will afford compensation in commerce for the loss of the Antilles, besides procuring occupation for the West Indian army in reestablishing Spanish rules.

The American people are still anxiously excited. Judging from press opinion, anything beyond the cession of Cuba will be considered harsh and unjust. This is the unanimous feeling among even the strongest advocates of peace.

The people are beginning to realize that peace will mean almost a total loss of colonies and, looking at the delicate and difficult position of the Queen Regent, great care is still necessary to induce the nation to accept the terms.

The Carlist and republican papers are making the most of the situation, while many of the Catholic prelates decline to comply with orders from the Vatican to censure the Carlist agitation.

El Imparcial's Rome correspondent says the Pope is so displeased with this attitude of the priests that he has washed his hands of the whole affair.

According to El Liberal, the government would not allow even the loss of some of the Philippines to hinder the conclusion of peace, because it is very doubtful whether the country would endorse.

TERRIBLE RUMORS FROM HAVANA.

London, July 30. The Havana correspondent of the Times in a letter dated June 19, paints a terrible picture of the despair that is falling upon the city in the absence of news from the outside world. The effect of the advancing prospect of famine and the "daily watching for the Spanish fleet which never comes." He says: "Wild rumors are afloat. The more timid people imagine all kinds of disasters and detailed terrible things, while always a few miles off and steaming to and fro are the vessels of the blockading fleet with the intention to starve Havana into submission, for that, apparently, is the safe and certain, if not very heroic American plan."

WILL COMBAT TO THE LAST.

London, July 30. The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "The Spanish government will combat to the last against a cession of Porto Rico to the United States. It would much rather sacrifice one of the Philippines, considering that Porto Rico has always been loyal and outside the scope of the war."

Boston, July 29. An employe of the New England Telephone Co., Frank Mack, 28 years old, while at work on Dorchester avenue, near West First street, this afternoon touched a live wire, receiving a severe shock, besides being terribly burned. He was taken to the city hospital where he died in a few hours.

SMITH GETS DECISION.

New York, July 29. After a hard fight which lasted 25 rounds, "Mysterious" Billy Smith was given a decision over George Green of California, at the Lenox Athletic Club tonight. Smith was the stronger and better throughout the entire fight and outfought and outpointed his opponent in every round. Smith's work at well on body was very good and he had Green's body very raw from his repeated blows on the ribs. Green received a severe hammering and gave it manfully. His friends lost a good deal of money on the result. Green's face was badly used up at the finish, while Smith did not show a mark on face or body.

MISS OPHELIA COLEMAN DEAD.

Washington, July 29. The state department has just received news of the death of Miss Ophelia Coleman, wife of the President of Liberia, in the executive mansion at Monrovia, June 29 last. She was a native of Augusta and emigrated to Liberia in 1892 where she was married to President Coleman the following year.

REGULAR TRIPS WILL BE MADE.

Washington, July 29. The war department has received large numbers of complaints from persons all over the country of the non-receipt of mail from soldiers in Cuba.

The postmaster general has completed arrangements for regular trips for carrying the mail and will not depend as heretofore upon the irregular trips of transports. Mail delivered, however, will be fumigated by quarantine regulations, owing to the yellow fever.

600 MEN OUT OF WORK.

The Work of Constructing the Plant as Planned Calls for Expenditures Aggregating Half a Million. Now Likely a Dead Loss.

Lubec, Me., July 29. The Electrolytic Marine Salts Co., organized for the purpose of extracting gold from sea water, which has been brought into great prominence during the past few days on account of the alleged connection of vice president and general manager, Rev. P. J. Jernegan, in buying thousands of dollars worth of government securities just previous to his departure for Europe last week, suspended operations at the plant here today. The force of 600 men have been discharged and no one connected with the plant can tell anything as to the future. The company was organized last year, and it is claimed that $2,000,000 shares of the stock have been disposed of.

The discharge of the men came as a surprise, as the work of construction as planned called for expenditures aggregating half a million. The men were informed that they would receive all wages due them. Those employed by the company got their money tonight, while those employed by contractor Shanahan will be paid Monday. The work is looked upon as likely to prove a dead loss owing to the fact that the plant is of such a nature that no profitable other purposes is out of the question.

Superintendent Pierson made an examination of the accumulators today and it is said he found traces of gold as if adhering from previous experiments.

PRESIDENT RYAN MISSING.

Newburyport, Mass., July 29. President Ryan of the Electrolytic Marine Salts Co., who has an appointment at the home of director A. P. Sawyer tonight failed to show up. Mr. Sawyer, in the course of an interview, said: "I am now prepared for the worst and I am loth to believe that the plants not an igloo to believe that the plant is not turn out as represented. I shall place whatever money that come to me through the medium of the company at the disposal of the stockholders. I have never directly advised anyone to invest in the stock, leaving it entirely to the judgment of the purchaser yet I propose to do what is possible to protect the interests of those who have placed money in the enterprise."

"The directors have been active in the matter since inception, apparently that something was wrong. Steps have been taken to apprehend T. J. Jernegan, the inventor of the secret process and the general manager, who he arrives at Havre. We expect that whatever money or bonds he has with him will be secured, in addition there is quite a sum on deposit in a Boston bank. Should events prove that fraud has been prominent, restitution will be made as far as possible."

IMPORTANT ORDERS ISSUED.

Washington, July 29. Two orders have been issued by the war department which are of importance to the sick and wounded troops and their friends. One authorizes those who have been furloughed from hospitals to report to the nearest government post instead of being compelled to report to the hospital from which they were furloughed. This will allow the soldiers to be transported from the nearest post to the regiments.

Another allows a man furloughed who has not been said on account of his regiment, being away in Cuba to go to the nearest quarter master and obtain from him transportation to his home. The cost will be charged against him through the pay department of the army.

These two orders will allow soldiers on furlough to go home and return without it difficulty, they have experienced heretofore.

HOW IT SPREADS.

People Are Talking All Over Bangor. This Report Comes from Jackson Street.

How it spreads.
Can't keep a "good thing" down.
Ever notice how good things are limitations?
Better the article, more imitators.
Fortunately, the people have a safeguard.
Praise can't be imitated.
Truth praise takes root and spreads.
Cure is one thing, proof another.
Cloth is what the manufacturer says.
Proof is what the people say.
Bangor people say:
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
Cure all kidney ills.
Hundreds of citizens testify to this.
Here is a case in point.
Mrs. J. Woodworth of No. 41 Jackson street, a Bangor citizen, says: "The benefit I derived from the use of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills was noticeable. They cleared my good opinion. For a long time I endured a sharp pain across the small of my back. I know what caused it and as I read considerable about Doan's Kidney Pills in the Boston papers and Bangor papers, I thought I would try them and since they would remove the trouble. I went to Ara Warren's drug store and got them. I was benefited so soon as they took hold, and in a short time I had not a vestige of pain. This is some thing that no sufferer will scout and forget and it is the simple reason why I wish others to know about Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

PITTSFIELD NEWS.

A Case of Assault and Battery Causes Excitement.

A Colored Man, "Pete," Found Guilty by the Court—Citizen Suffers Paralytic Shock—Notes of Interest.

(Special to the Whig and Courier.)

Pittsfield, July 28. A colored man, "Pete," who has given open air concerts near the postoffice for several evenings past in the interests of L. C. Hood & Co. of Boston, whose agents have been dispensing patent medicines to our citizens at different prices, was taken into custody last evening by Officer Corey and brought before Judge Howden this morning on the charge of assault and battery. During the exhibitions of the last two evenings these parties had been interrupted by jeers and hisses of a few persons, for whose conduct the general public should not be held responsible. The prisoner stated that he was informed that Harry Surman, the complainant, took a leading or prominent part in the demonstrations of the evening. The evidence adduced by the State tended to show that the prisoner, accompanied by Dr. Peacock, the manager of the party, went to Ames' restaurant, Surman's boarding place, and entering his room engaged him in a heated discussion, after which he struck him in the face, dragged him from his bed and kicked him. Surman immediately donned his clothing and coming out on the street found Officer Corey, who took the prisoner in charge. After hearing all the evidence the court reserved decision until 1.30 o'clock this afternoon, when he found the prisoner guilty, imposing a fine of $3 and costs. An appeal was taken and bonds furnished for appearance at the September term of court. This is the first matter of a criminal nature that has been brought to the attention of the court for several months.

Mr. Ethan B. Maxwell suffered a severe paralytic shock yesterday afternoon, from which it was a first feared he would not recover. His many friends will be pleased to learn, however, that his condition is somewhat improved, and that his physicians now hope for his recovery.

Miss Ada G. Whitney of Pittsfield, formerly stenographer in F. W. Hoyey's law office, is in town for a few days visiting friends.

Governor Powers arrived in town on yesterday's train, accompanied by his family. They stopped at the Fancy House last night and this morning drove to West Pittsfield his childhood home, to visit his mother, Mrs. Abel Walker.

Albert Merrow and Ben Ross, who have been home for a few days on a furlough, returned last night to battery D, at Augusta.

Gordon McTaggart, who left this place last winter for the Klondike region, returned on the Pullman this morning. He left town on the forenoon train for St. Albans to join his family, who are visiting relatives there.

MRS. PORTER COMMENDS THE RED CROSS SOCIETY.

New York, July 29. The Red Cross relief steamer State of Texas, commanded by Capt. Young, arrived at quarantine at noon today from Santiago. The State of Texas has a crew of 30 men and brings Mrs. Porter, wife of the President's private secretary, who volunteered as a Red Cross nurse, Sister Blanche, one of the Red Cross staff of nurses, and four Red Cross surgeons, G. R. Bell, Charles Doherty and H. Lightstone.

Mrs. Porter was seen on board the State of Texas. She said:

"I aided in the landing and the distribution of the Red Cross stores at Santiago. I went ashore and visited the hospitals and visited the battlefields where our soldiers fought and bled. I cannot speak too highly of the magnificent work done by the Red Cross Society at the front. I feel that without the aid members of our brave men would have died from lack of medicines and other necessaries."

The State of Texas has the distinction of being the first vessel to enter the harbor of Santiago after its surrender. Gen. Shafter, with Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, visited Miss Barton on July 17 and ordered that the State of Texas be permitted to enter the harbor. Miss Barton and her small discharged at Siboney and proceeded to carry out the work of relief to the sick and wounded and also to assist the reconcentrados. The State of Texas left Santiago on July 19 and experienced very pleasant weather throughout. On arrival at quarantine the State of Texas was boarded by Health Officer Doty, who inspected the steamer and her crew. All being well on board, she was permitted to proceed to her dock at pier 19, East river.

Johanan Nord, the stewardess of the State of Texas, who was suffering from a high fever and sunstroke, was removed to Hoffman Island.

The State of Texas brought two loads of mail from the U. S. cruiser Brooklyn, which she met off Santiago.

PHILIPPINES THE STICKER.

Washington, July 29. It was stated tonight in a high diplomatic quarter, in such a manner as to give official character to the expression, that if American control or supervision of the Philippines was an indispensable condition laid down as the basis for peace negotiations, it was certain that the Spanish government would not accede to this condition. But would extend matters to continue the war. In the other peace conditions "understood" to have been decided on by the cabinet today there was another also to the effect that Spain would yield some more than consent to the Spanish government as it is to the American cabinet and there is even greater hesitation on the continuance of Spanish sovereignty over Porto Rico, than there is over Cuba and Porto Rico.

It is also said that if the last are to demand a money indemnity, would be presented by the Spanish authorities as an act of oppression by the victors and that will be one of the reasons the government is in consistence with the other terms laid down.

The late Marquis of Exeter was Queen Rutledgian of the Soke of Peterborough. Frederick C. Sayles, the first mayor of Pawtucket, R. I., offered to present to the city a free library in memory of his wife, Deborah Cook Sayles, and has purchased a $22,500 site for the building.

Lieutenant J. G. Mason Blunt, of the 3d United States Cavalry and now Assistant Quartermaster General, served with Don Carlos in the Carlist wars of 1873-75 and gives rather a more favorable view of the pretender's character than that generally accepted. "He is one of the most sympathetic leaders I ever saw, is much beloved by his followers and is one of the most gracious and grateful men I ever saw," he says.

In these particulars he is a typical Bourbon. He has the happy faculty of putting at ease any one brought into his presence, and can say and do exactly the right thing at the right time. I saw him, under fire a number of times during the war, and can testify to his personal bravery. I saw much of him at the siege of Bilbao, and always found him an imperial executive and a lovable and courteous general."

St. John's College, Fordham, has conferred the honorary degree of M. A. on Burton H. Glynn, managing editor of the Albany Times-Union.

A writer in the London Church Gazette tells this story about Mr. Gladstone: "It happened to be in a church one Sunday morning when Mr. Gladstone came in; it was a church he attended very rarely, so he was quite unexpected. He had much difficulty in finding a seat; he was a free and open church and he to record it dreadfully. A curate person, whom we all loved, but whose voice was not preaching, happened to be in the pulpit, and caught sight of the Prime Minister as he hunted and looked around for a chair. It was almost his first sermon, and, nervous before, this quite upset him. This Mr. Gladstone quickly perceived, and picking up his hat and umbrella, he scurried to the top of the church, and finding a seat among the children, sat through the whole of a long sermon with his hand to his ear, paying the most marked attention to every word. This gave the curate quite a start. I am sorry to say he is since dead—more courage, for after the service Mr. Gladstone took an opportunity of thanking him."

Dudley, the French executioner, is about to take his retiring pension. He is, however, very anxious about his successor.

Like Cato, who in his 80th year began to learn Greek, Lord Dufferin, who has passed the limits of threescore years and ten, thinks it is really time he knew something about Persian. He has accordingly set himself the task of adding that poetic and figurative language to his already large store of linguistic accomplishments.

GARLAND MAN FOUND DEAD.

George F. Crowell, who went from Garland six years ago, was found dead alongside the railroad track at Monominee, Mich., Monday morning with a bullet hole in his neck. The addition of the Belfast company to the Second regiment will make that regiment undoubtedly the stronger of the two in Maine.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Get Your ... and You Get Less

Why is it every sarsaparilla which tries to sell itself, ranges itself against Ayer's as the standard? Why is it that all have to offer extra inducements—bigger bottles, fancy wrappers, cheaper price—anything, everything, but the one inducement of quality?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

has never been equaled by any cheap imitation of it, and quality tells, just as blood tells.

It is the Standard.

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than twenty-five years, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. A proposition most possess great merit to maintain such a reputation. I believe your sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier that has ever been introduced to the general public. I often hear other manufacturers say that this is "as good as Ayer's," but no one ever yet heard it said that Ayer's was "as good" as any other kind. They always set Ayer's up as the standard of excellence."—S. F. Boyce, Duluth, Minn.

TIMELY TOPICS SUGGESTED BY THE WAR.

While your eyes are at the present moment fixed upon the fighting fleets of Spain and America, perhaps a glance at the battleships of the other powers of the world will be found interesting.

To look our naval review in proper order, we propose to select the very best fighting ships owned by each nation of the earth possessing a navy, and make all these champions "toe the line" at the Lizard Point in Cornwall—natural draft being allowed for—and then at a given signal set them racing to New York—a distance, say, of 3000 miles.

We drop the line of Canada heads and destroyers in this race, although their speed may be greater, their small coal capacity would put them out of the race at an early stage.

Starters for the big race: Names and uniforms: Great Britain, H. M. S. Terrible; Austria-Hungary, the "Dr." Magnetic Rep-filter, the Brenner; Argentine Republic, the Buenos Ayres; Brazil, the Barroso; Chile, the Esmeralda; China, the Hai Chi; Denmark, the Herluf Trolle; France, the Gueydon; Germany, the Frederick Barbarossa; Greece, the Pyrrhus; Italy, the Lepanto; Japan, the Yoshima; Netherlands, the Tromp; Norway, the Harald Haarfager; Portugal, the Don Carlos I; Russia, the Rurik; Spain, the Cisneros; Sweden, the Oden; Turkey, the Avzeh; United States, the Brooklyn.

With all the ships formed in one straight line the signal is given and they're off.

A tremendous struggle for supremacy takes place between China, the Monitor-Destroyer of everybody now in the know, the Hai Chi, with the Pyrrhus speed, drapes away from the rest of her companions, and by the time she has forced 200 knots (117 miles) she is three and a half miles ahead.

Seamen side by side in an unbroken line follow in stately order the Buenos Ayres, Esmeralda, and Gueydon with H. M. S. Terrible following up in their wake, unchallenged.

Worst off in the rear at the farthest point of Sandy Hook supporting the crowds coming in from worlds for a necessary check, then off in the following order:

First, The Gueydon, France; speed 23 knots, 27 miles per hour, 114 hours, 4 days 18 hours.

Second, H. M. S. Terrible, speed 22½ knots, 26¼ miles per hour, 124 hours, 4 days 18 hours.

Third, The Brooklyn, United States; speed 21 knots, 24 miles per hour, 125 hours, 5 days 5 hours.

As soon as the Brooklyn had passed the winning post some of the other ships would reach there until the appearance of the Monarch, five hours after the Brooklyn, 5 days 10 hours, 30 hours, 11 hours after the Brooklyn, 5 days 16 hours.

The following would be left behind at the conquest of the Atlantic waves through shortness of coal supplies:

	Miles from home
(6)—Cristoforo, stranded	170
(7)—Yoshima, stranded	600
(8)—Buenos Ayres, stranded	810
(9)—Prince Bismarck, stranded	900
(10)—Tromp, stranded	400
(11)—Oesterreich, stranded	500
(12)—Don Carlos I, stranded	500
(13)—Barroso, stranded	700
(14)—Oden, stranded	800
(15)—Avzeh, stranded	900
(16)—Esmeralda, stranded	900
(17)—Harald Haarfager, stranded	980
(18)—Rurik, stranded	520
(19)—Odin, stranded	514
(20)—Pyrrhus, stranded	770

You will note that the Hai Chi is now somewhere near the ship was at the commencement of the race. Her position is good, due to the coal being expended being unnecessarily, for we have not allowed any of the competing ships to carry coal on board. They have all drawn from their own bunkers—Pearson's.

MORMON FOR CHAPLAIN

Elias S. Kimball, of Meadon, Utah, is the first Mormon to be appointed a chaplain in the army of the United States. President McKinley has assigned him to the chaplaincy of the Second regiment of volunteer engineers, of which William Young, of Salt Lake City, is the colonel. Chaplain Kimball is a native of Salt Lake City and is 43 years old. His father, Apostle Heber C. Kimball, died when Elias was 11. Elias then began working at Salt Lake with his brother, Jonathan G. Kimball. He was educated at Brigham Young Academy at Provo, and attended the Deseret University. In 1883 he went on a mission to the Southern States and remained there for two years. After some more experience traveling he entered the real estate business at Montpelier, Idaho, but in 1894 he returned to the mission in the southern states as its president. This summer he came back to Utah. He is now visiting his brother, but will soon join his regiment.

THINGS THAT ARE DIFFERENT IN MEXICO.

(From Modern Mexico.)

The bridegroom always furnishes the trousseau of his bride.

Mines are generally worked as mines and not for the stock market.

In every city free night schools are maintained for the working classes.

There is no hanging in Mexico, and outside what concerns the army and the brigands, no capital punishment.

In a Mexico home the sofa is the seat of honor and a guest does not take a seat upon it until asked to do so.

Theatrical companies that do not present the attraction they have billed are subject to fine. A fine is also placed on bull fighters who give a poor performance or who do not begin on time.

A lawyer is addressed as licenciado (one who has taken a university degree) just as commonly as a physician is called doctor, and the abbreviation (Lic.) is placed before the name, in writing, just as Dr. is.

The term of a prisoner in a penitentiary is divided into three periods. The first is occupied with penal labor. The second is later in the tranquillo period with a little play. The third, "preparatory freedom," includes paid work and many privileges.

There are no "professional jurors" in Mexico. Nine of a man's peers try him, and a majority is a verdict. If the nine are unanimous there is no appeal. To serve on a jury one must have a diploma in law, medicine or some other profession, or an income of $100 a month; or he must be a member of a family whose head has an income of $2,000 a year.

Much attention is given to the formal opening of new institutions of all kinds. The inauguration of any new enterprise is made the occasion of some kind of exercises and the president and his cabinet, state, city or village dignitaries are asked to attend according to the importance of the occasion. Very few things from a railroad to a new shop are opened without formal religious blessings in addition to the ceremonies attending the rejoicing of the populace.

The War Situation.

The report of the surrender of Manila seems to have been premature. At least the despatches received up to the time of going to press contain no information of that character has been received in Washington, although it is believed there that General Merritt has arrived and is in command of the land forces and news of the downfall of Manila is looked for at any moment. The report of the surrender above referred to was not credited in official circles from the fact that it was the belief in Washington that as early information would be received there as could possibly be received elsewhere.

The cabinet held a prolonged meeting to consider the peace proposition and the terms to be offered by this government. The one point concerning which no agreement was reached was that referring to the future disposition of the Philippines. There seems to be no particular sentiment among the members of the cabinet in favor of retaining control of the islands, the prevailing idea being that all we need there is a coaling station, but there was a difference of opinion as to the kind of government that should be inaugurated for the future control of the Philippines. Some of the members seemed to feel, and that with very good reason that the insurgents had manifested a disposition that did not tend to strengthen faith in their ability to successfully maintain an independent government.

Without reaching a definite conclusion the cabinet meeting adjourned until this morning. So far as Cuba, Independence and the cession of Porto Rico is concerned there was entire accord, and the despatches indicate that a final conclusion concerning the Philippine question is nearer than might be inferred from the prolonged discussion. There was a pronounced disposition to continue all the war measures now in force until Spain had specifically agreed to the terms proposed by this country as the basis of reestablishing peace. Until such an agreement is reached no armistice will be granted, nor will this government consent to any reference of the questions involved to outside powers.

There was naturally much gratification over the news from Porto Rico announcing the surrender of Ponce, which will doubtless soon be followed by the surrender of the entire island.

Expensive and Complicated.

We publish this morning an editorial from the Maine Farmer in which that paper announces its opposition to the Australian ballot law and gives its reasons. The Farmer is a very conservative paper. It does not jump at conclusions touching matters affecting the interests of the people, and its opposition to the present voting system comes as a result of careful investigation of the workings of the law. It speaks to unit for the agricultural sections of the State and its vigorous arraignment of a system of voting that has complicated the right of suffrage so far at least where several thousand people are disfranchised in every election will attract wide attention. Whether any considerable movement will be made to secure a repeal of the law as a question of the future, but the Whig agrees with the Farmer in the view that the system has fallen far short of what was claimed for it by its advocates when it was thrust upon the people of the State.

Sixteen to One in Cuba.

The merchants of Santiago, who know what a silver dollar is when they see it have refused to take American silver dollars at other than their metal value putting them on the same footing as the Mexican dollars.

Those merchants know that in the world's markets gold and silver pass on their merits and by weight. They know that a gold piece contains so many grains of gold according to the official stamp upon it, and that a silver piece contains so many grains of silver. They know that if 25.8 grains of standard gold are worth 100 cents that 412½ grains of standard silver contain 50 worth half as much, and they do business upon that principle.

Now, does anybody believe that even Colonel Bryan with his silver tongue could convince those Santiago merchants that a silver dollar is just as valuable to them as a gold dollar, or that they can buy as much for it? What would they pay to him if he undertook such a job? Wouldn't they think he was trying a confidence game on them?

And yet there are thousands and thousands of gaping Americans who have stood by the hour listening to Colonel Bryan and have gone away convinced that he was telling them the truth when he said that sixteen ounces of silver were worth ounce of gold!

When he gets to Santiago Colonel Bryan will find that the merchants there will not sell him supplies on that basis.

The Australian Ballot.

[Maine Farmer.]

Circumstances alter cases. One man's meat is another's poison. The Maine Farmer calls the Australian ballot system "a farce and a failure" in that State. But in Massachusetts it is a success and gives general satisfaction—New England Farmer.

The Maine Farmer is opposed to the present law for two reasons either of which is sufficient to condemn the act:

1. Because of the enormous expense imposed upon the State.

2. Because, through its complicated and cumbersome details, so large a per cent. of voters is disfranchised.

It has proven a "farce" because it has utterly failed to correct abuses, and a "failure" because it has lowered public estimate of the worth of the ballot.

It was a charming theory put forth as a panacea for the ills of party influence, but in its operations the evils it was intended to remedy have increased. It has multiplied machinery, created numberless petty offices, all calling for a salary, and placed a premium on the class of voters who vote for "employment." It does not insure a more just verdict of the will of the people, but has been the means of opening the door to outrages unknown under the old time system, when every vote cast has ballot upon handled and free before the gaze of whoever chose to look.

The one system infilled to freedom of action and the dignity of citizens, the other demands an apology every time a self respecting citizen enters the booth, to record "in private" what every man should be proud to proclaim from the donetop. His devotion to principle ne ignored in platforms and enforced by successful candidates. For this opinion the writer alone is responsible, but believing the present law to be degrading to manhood, and a burden to the State, its repeal will be urged until the last vestige is wiped from our statute books and a system in accord with American Independence made the law of the State.

TWO NAVAL MIRACLES.

Immunity of the American Fleet From Injury or Bloodshed.

The mystery of Manila was repeated at Santiago. Sampson's fleet, like Dewey's came out unscathed from a battle in which the enemy hurled missiles from powerful guns as fast as they were able to shoot and as long as their vessels could be kept afloat. At Santiago, as at Manila, a fleet of big sheds fell around the American vessels as long as the battle lasted. The Spaniards were in action long enough to have wrought great havoc in the American ships, even though the superiority in numbers and fighting capacity of the latter made an American victory inevitable in the long run.

How, then, was it possible for such a conflict to be fought without a single shot to disorder do the victorious fleet? More random firing by the Spaniards might have been expected to cause more harm than was wrought in the two battles. No one would have believed three months ago that thousands of big shells could be hurled at a fleet of war vessels without killing and wounding in large number of men. No one could have deemed that the utmost of Dewey's destruction of an enemy's fleet in battle without serious mishap to his own vessels would ever be repeated.

Yet there are two unexampled naval victories within a little more than two months, in which the enemy's vessels were completely destroyed without an important loss to the conquerors. How did these miracles happen? The valor and the great skill of the Americans account for the victories, but they do not explain the mystery of the complete escape of the American vessels from harm. The bad gunning of the Spaniards does not wholly account for it, for wild shots are frequently fatal of mischief. Even the little unprotected vessels of the Americans that were under fire escaped harm, along with the big armored battleships.

The complete immunity of this country's fleets from disaster and serious loss in these two battles will remain for all time the greatest marvel in the annals of the world's naval conflicts.—Kansas City Star.

BULLET PASSED THROUGH HIS HEAD.

Lieut. Mills, of the 1st United States Cavalry, who met at the Rhoite yesterday with his wife, was one of a gallant band who did such heroic fighting before Santiago on June 24th. That he is now alive is almost a miracle, since a Spanish bullet entered one side of his head and went crashing clear through. Those who saw him first had a sudden that it was possible for him to recover, so horrible was the wound. The curious part of it was that though knocked down by the force of the missile, Lieut. Mills never lost consciousness. He is as cheery as ever, as though he had experienced no disaster, and is quite ready to go back after the Castilians as soon as fools in fighting trim.—Washington Post.

Brookline, a suburb of Boston, enjoys the distinction of having the finest system of public baths in America. The tank, which is 100 feet long and 80 feet wide, is always filled with the clearest water, and is well patronized during all hours of the day. An idea of the good work accomplished by this institution in the fostering and development of a love for swimming may be obtained from the report of their instructor, appended herewith: "I respectfully submit my first report of the swimming department since assuming its charge on January 18, 1897. The progress made first season was gratifying as in five months eighty girls and fifty-nine boys were instructed; thirty-nine of the girls and forty-seven of the boys learned how to swim. Classes were held with a view to instruction in life saving and resuscitation of the apparently drowned, and at the end of the school year twelve young men passed the requirements which entitled them to the certificates awarded for proficiency. Profiting by the experience gained we began the present term by securing the names of all non-swimmers in the schools in the sixth grade and above and have issued tickets to those entitled to instruction. The classes, numbering ten to fifteen pupils, are instructed in periods of half an hour for each class, and so it is possible to give instruction to as many as fifty in an afternoon. Each class has a preliminary "land drill" which consists of several groups of movements illustrating the proper strokes, after which (having taken the preliminary shower bath) all are allowed to enter the water and, under the teacher's instruction, endeavor to imitate the motions which they have just been through. Each pupil obtains a course of twelve lessons and usually learns to swim well by the time his or her course is finished. In addition to the usual teaching of swimming I have adapted a plan of visiting the different schools and giving the 'land drill' there, and have also formed a teachers' class, to which I give one hour each week. Later I expect to give practical demonstrations of how to resuscitate the apparently drowned, and in this way reach those in the schools who have not as yet come under my care. Swimming is becoming as popular with the girls as it is with the boys, and it only requires a slight incentive to gain them over to a healthy enthusiasm. The practical side of this branch of physical training is essentially humanitarian and equally as important to both sexes; therefore, I trust that parents of girls so fulfil their moral responsibility in this direction. Number of tickets issued, boys, 210; girls, 221; teachers, 89; total, 520. Lessons, boys, 1,151; girls, 1,225; teachers, 111; total 2,487. Average attendance, boys, 52; girls, 34; teachers, 81; total, 73. Number who have learned, boys, 90; girls, [illegible]; teachers, 20; total, 156." This report was signed by Lemuel A. B. Street, M. D., instructor.

State Fish Commissioner Little of Seattle, Wash., says the Sportsman's Magazine has secured an 83-pound salmon, which will be shipped to Omaha and exhibited as one of the products of the State. The salmon is the largest of its kind ever caught in the Columbia river, and merited the $20 reward offered by the canneymen of the Columbia for all fish weighing over seventy-five pounds—a reward very seldom claimed. The big salmon was caught by William Markham, and sold to a packing company of Ilwaco. The cannery presented the fish to the commissioner. The big fish measured 4 feet in length and 36½ inches in girth. The fish was sent to Astoria and frozen at a cold storage plant in a cake of ice.

THE FORCE OF A RIFLE BULLET.

In the English official regulations for 1893 it is stated that the mean extreme range of the Lee-Metford bullet may be taken as about 3,500 yards, although with a strong wind, 3,700 yards have been observed. The bullets find their way through joints of walls, unless the walls are made very fine and set in cement. About 150 rounds, concentrated on nearly the same spot at 200 yards, will break a nine-inch brick wall. Rammed earth gives less protection than loose. When fired into sand the bullet is found to be always turned aside after it has entered a little way. The following thicknesses of material (in inches) are usually necessary to stop the regulation .303-inch bullet: Shingled roofs, 3; boards, ¾; hardened steel plate, ¼; common brick work, 9; sack of coal, 12; hard dry mud wall, 14; peat earth, 60; compressed cotton bales, 22; oak, 27; elm, 33; teak, 36; fir, 48; clay, 48.—Washington Star.

Cupid is usually pictured as a frolicsome, playful little fellow, always smiling or laughing, but with justice, truce of frolic, in his make-up.

This is the artist's ideal. In reality Cupid, in these days is a matter-of-fact little chap. He is beginning to learn that life is not all a summer holiday. He is fast learning that sickness and unhealthy women have no right to tamper with love or matrimony. It is best for themselves and best for the human race that they should not. It is not a hard matter for men and women to preserve their health if they wish. It is far from impossible for them to restore it after it has been lost. That being the case, the modern Cupid is right in looking with disfavor upon matrimonial matches between sick men and unhealthy women. Ill health in a woman is generally the result of some weakness or disorder of the distinctly feminine organism that is slowly sapping her vital strength. At first, a little pain and slight indispositions which seem to her quite unimportant. They grow steadily worse until she suffers all the time from burning and dragging sensations, and occasionally is forced to take to her bed. Finally they completely unfit her for wifehood and motherhood. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing remedy for all ailments of this kind. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in maternity, and makes them well and strong. It transforms weak, sickly, nervous invalids into healthy, happy wives and mothers. Medicine dealers sell it. No worthless substitute will recommended as a substitute.

"Since I wrote you, we have had a baby girl born to us," writes W. R. Malcolm of Mitchell, Clay Co., Ark. "My wife took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription during the expectant period and with confinement, and she had no trouble to mention. A stouter, healthier child was never born. Our child will be one year of age on the 8th inst., and she has not been sick a day. Has not had so much as the colic."

Washington, July 29. The war department would not be surprised to learn by this time that Manila has surrendered to the combined military and naval forces gathered off and at Cavite. However, there is no official confirmation of the report that was presented this morning to that effect. The United States government is in a position, it is believed, to receive news of so important an event sooner than the Spanish authorities at Madrid. Being hemmed in on all sides, Capt. Gen. Augusti would not be able to communicate with Hong Kong, the nearest cable station, without passing his messages through the U. S. lines and securing permission for its transmission by boat to Hong Kong, and even if a boat bearing such a message had arrived at Hong Kong it is only a fair supposition that the news of the fall of Manila would be communicated at that point to the world at large by means of the cable instead of being confined to the Madrid government.

Consequently it is believed that this announcement of the fall of Manila is an assumption perhaps on the strength but for it may be that the Spanish government having sent permission to Augusti to surrender concludes that he has done so.

It was known to be the disposition of the Spanish authorities at Manila to surrender to the American forces instead of to the insurgents when the town must fall. It is tolerably certain that Admiral Dewey might have received the surrender at any time within the past six weeks had he been disposed to exert the slightest pressure in that direction.

Indeed, in one of his despatches he made the blunt statement that he could take Manila in 24 hours if he desired. The reason he did not desire to do so was undoubtedly because of a reluctance on his part to entrust the destinies of the great city to the insurgents under Aguinaldo who, at first tractable, had begun to show signs of impatience under restraint.

Dewey realized that he was being held morally responsible by the civilized world for the protection of the people of Manila against excesses at the hands of the insurgents. There was also the strongest reason why he should not by failure to care for the interests of foreign residents in the town, open the door to intervention of any neutral naval commanders who had been lying in the harbor, jealously watching for their opportunity. Therefore, it became necessary for the admiral to maintain the status quo until a sufficient military force arrived to enable him to receive the surrender of the town and to occupy and protect it. This has been done with some difficulty, as will be revealed in the end when all of the correspondence is published, for it has been almost impossible to keep the insurgents out of the town, and their efforts to effect an entrance have redoubled since they learned of the approach of the American forces and saw dawning upon them the possibility of an American occupation of the town that should exclude them from Manila, precisely as Shafter excluded Garcia's Cubans from Santiago. Now, however, Dewey undoubtedly has with him a sufficient military force to warrant him in accepting the surrender of Manila. It is said at the war department that at least three of the military expeditions that have been despatched to the Philippines from San Francisco [illegible] Manila, affording an army [illegible] ten and fifteen thousand peo[illegible] up by Dewey's ships and sailors.

Suspicious interest attaches [illegible] lished statement in one of the Spanish semi-official organs to the effect [illegible] August has been shorn of [illegible] over the Philippines beyond Manila [illegible] its immediate environments, the capital [illegible] general of the Philippine group [illegible] transferred to the commander of [illegible] Visayan islands. It is just possible [illegible] there is an important connection between these two items of news, one [illegible] surrender of Manila and the other [illegible] gusti's replacement.

Both come from Spanish sources [illegible] to the latter, it was found [illegible] the Spanish despatch that the [illegible] was to prevent Augusti from surrendering the entire Philippine group [illegible] that it is conceivable that have [illegible] arranged the matter so as to [illegible] their interests in the meantime [illegible] so far as possible, and having [illegible] themselves in a position to deny [illegible] United States government has made [illegible] conquest of the Philippines, the Spanish minister may have directed Augusti [illegible] surrender the small jurisdiction [illegible] ing to him to the United States [illegible] vent it from falling into the hands [illegible] the insurgents.

INDIANS IN HACKS

The Indians had a big blowout [illegible] residence of Louis Antoine [illegible] one day this week, the occasion [illegible] the celebration of the anniversary [illegible] death of Agustus, in Coeur d'Alene, who died last year.

A magnificent feast was given by the host, a son of the deceased, to all who attended. The entire tribe was [illegible] and fully 600, including the chiefs [illegible] cepted the invitation.

Chief Saltese made a characteristic speech, and was followed by Peter White shoe, who praised the virtues of the deceased. The chief of the Spokanes also addressed the assembly. The festivities began at 9 o'clock and lasted till evening. The feast was given by the host, Agustus, and must have cost "pretty penny," as excellent food was served to the vast throng present.

These Indians are rapidly becoming civilized and are assuming the [illegible] and dress of the whites more [illegible] They have excellent farms, good [illegible] and machinery, and one passing over the reservation would not believe that it was occupied by Indians did he not see them. Their houses are generally well built and painted and look neat and clean, while many have excellent barns and farms well tilled.

They raise a large amount of grain each year and sell it in Tekoa. A large portion of it is loaded at a side track on the reservation, but the grain is sold to Tekoa dealers and the money is in general spent there.

Many of them dress entirely like white people and come to town in fine carriages and hacks. They are quite industrious and are excellent citizens and always peaceful, except when under the influence of liquor, sold to them by unscrupulous white persons.—Spokane Statesman-Review.

—A woman cannot be entirely womanly—she cannot be a perfect woman—if she is not in perfect health. In just so much as her sickness affects the organs that make her a woman, in just so much she loses attractiveness. This is the chief part of her health. If anything is wrong there, it may result in all manner of ills all over the body. Careless, or too busy, physicians frequently treat the symptoms of this kind of disorder as separate and distinct ailments. The symptoms are many, and varied, so much so that when a woman is sick in any way, the first thought should be given to the organs distinctly feminine. About 9 times in 10 the cause of the trouble will be found there. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures all disorders of this kind. There is no guess-work about it. It is a fact that has been demonstrated in 30 odd years of extensive practice. Thousands of women have written grateful letters, who have wished the whole world of women to know the wonderful things the Prescription has done for them.

This narrative from a minister is of greatest value to those whose nerves are unstrung, health shattered, or otherwise ailing. It is particularly appropriate in this age of active, nervous, endless labor.

We are living too fast. "Fast as lightning," expresses it, for we talk by electricity, cook by electricity, travel by electricity and so on.

Its a hurry, hurry, hurry from the cradle to the grave.

We crowd too much; crowd our work, crowd our eating, crowd our pleasure, crowd our sleeping.

A "breaking down of the nervous system" is the way of expressing the result.

It means a depleting of the nerves induced by prolonged strain; overtaxing of the nervous system; a product of over-hurry and bustle.

It affects all people in all walks of life. It baffles physicians of all schools.

No one knows the horrors of such a condition better than Rev. J. N. McCready, of Elkton, Mich. For years he labored faithfully and well. He was progressive and aggressive; a leader among men, a deep thinker and a hard worker.

In his zeal, he overworked; overtaxed his mental and physical strength.

The outlook was dark, with health shattered and recovery apparently hopeless.

Many means for a cure were tried, without receiving benefit.

Finally he took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and was restored to health.

He says:

"In April, 1896, the physicians said I must stop preaching or die.

"I had overtaxed myself and was suffering from a complete breaking down of my nervous system and a persistent stomach trouble.

"Several physicians treated me, but no permanent benefit was derived.

"Four times I was stricken with nervous prostration; twice with gastritis.

"These attacks would throw me into spasms.

"I could eat neither meat or vegetables.

"If my bare feet touched the floor I was immediately seized with cramps.

"I was used up; helpless, hopeless.

"I commenced to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. One box was consumed and I felt no better. This discouraged me.

"My wife urged me to try the pills some more, feeling that my life depended upon the result.

"I continued to take them.

"Since then, and it has been several months, I have enjoyed life.

"Have preached all summer and held revival meetings for fifteen weeks.

"I have had no muscular exercise for years, but recently, have done considerable hard work in my garden; my muscles standing this test remarkably well.

"Every Sabbath I preach three times and now think I am good for another twenty years, if the Lord wills."

To add weight to his words, Rev. McCready made affidavit before J. D. Brookes, Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People exert a powerful influence in restoring wasted nerve power and in purifying and enriching the blood. Druggists consider them the most effective remedy which they dispense.

THE GREEN SENTINEL.

Many amusing stories are told of the camp life at Mobile, where the two Louisiana regiments are in quarters, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. The different camps now at Mobile are made up exclusively of volunteer regiments, and some of the young soldiers are very, very recruits. A cool story is told of a volunteer in the First Alabama Regiment. Last week the Second Louisiana was in a position where the most convenient route to reach it was through the camp of the First Alabama. One of this members of the Louisiana camp was out after thieves, dealers in crime to the tune of the Alabama camp, he ran into a sentinel, who promptly brought his gun to a charge and shouted, "Halt!" The Louisianian promptly halted, and the sentinel, and the blood peering at each other for some time through the gloom. Finally the sentinel, in tremulous tones, said: "You can't get through this line unless you say 'Hobson!'" "Hobson!" the Louisianian promptly said.

The sentinel thought this piece of war present, the intruder saluted, and the two was passed.

The bride was highly esteemed by many friends who will miss her. Mr. Bailey is a bright young man, graduate of the U. of M. '98. They will reside at Belfast for the present.

...ND MORE NAVAL MANOEUVRES.

British Authorities Have Come to the Conclusion That They Are of Little Value.

The substitute for naval manoeuvres has already begun, the reserve squadron and the Channel fleet are collecting. A representative of the Navy League has discovered what was already pretty well known that "want of coal is not the real reason." We have already touched upon this matter, having pointed out how absurd is the idea that political reasons, and a consequent desire to economize coal, had anything to do with the admiralty's decision.

Avowed or not, the real reason is that manoeuvres are not worth the expense. Nothing wanteer has ever been learnt from these make-believe battles or ever will be learnt until some very different system is evolved; further, they are unpopular with nearly every officer in the service. The operations of Capt. Long in 1892 and the blockade of 1889 may be argued as exceptions to the statement that nothing has ever been learnt by manoeuvres, but that was long ago, and at best but a drop in the ocean. More than once the manoeuvres would almost appear to have been deliberately arranged and cooked, in order to prove to the public that there was or was not danger under such-and-such circumstances.

In 1894, for instance, the manoeuvres worked out to prove something about our Mediterranean fleet, and its chances of a junction with the Channel before the two French fleets could join. It is difficult to believe that manoeuvre rules have not been framed before now in order to show the public that torpedo boats cannot do much harm. We do not altogether attack this method of instructing the public, but it is costly. It might be well, too, if the framers of manoeuvres could get one elementary idea into their heads and that is that war does not consist in making junctions of fleets. Both we and our enemies won't, surely, have the sense to do this so far as possible before the war broke out, not after.

For instance, if war was really imminent with France, we should not leave the Mediterranean fleet at Malta and the Channel fleet at Portland. Such reinforcements as were deemed necessary we should at once make. This attempt might produce the war, and it is conceivable that we might have a government foolish enough to say its hand on that account. It is, however, equally foolish to base our plans on such a supposition, or to expect that our enemies would be equally insane.

They manage these things better in France. In French manoeuvres, not only is the fighting, where no points assigned to each ship, carefully thought out, every ship is limited to a certain number of decorations. Conditions likely to occur in war are carefully thought out, so that there is a good deal more realism than with us.

To look back to our manoeuvres and the end question, comparatively few people are aware of the enormous amount of coal consumed by a fleet in harbor. There are so many auxiliary engines, etc., to keep going that a battleship of the Majestic class consumes something like eighty tons a week. At sea, on cruisers, the consumption—we lay, week out—is approximately 200 tons a week. There is an impression about that ships in harbor cost next to nothing in coal.—The Engineer.

A RARE BEAST.

Alderman Mitchell Shoots a Powhee—Animal Said to Be Almost Extinct.

A powhee, captured by Alderman Mitchell late Friday is a species of wild animal now almost extinct. A few are said to be left in the vast forests of northern Canada, but for many years past it has been generally believed that powhees were extinct in the United States. The animal is about the size of a large cat but possessed of great strength, and is exceedingly fierce when cornered. While only a small animal, it looks much larger than it really is on account of its peculiar construction. The hind legs of a powhee are about six inches longer than the front ones, and a person some distance behind the animal might very readily be deceived into the notion that it was standing or walking on its hind legs.

The peculiar formation of a powhee enables it to climb a tree with great adroitness, and, remarkable though the fact may seem to the uninitiated, it is the hind end that goes up first. The hind legs are provided with very sharp claws, and these the powhee uses to climb and defend itself. When it comes to a fight a powhee is said to be more than able to hold its own with a wildcat.

Friday afternoon Alderman Mitchell was going to the lake carrying a shotgun to have some sport with the water fowl that are so plentiful there, and on passing through the wood he saw the powhee descending a tree. The Alderman was astonished at its appearance but determined not to let it escape, he blazed away at short range. He fired both barrels but one probably would have done the work, for when the smoke rolled away from before his eyes he saw the powhee lying at the bottom of the tree dead. The Alderman approached the spot very cautiously, having an idea that the animal might apply be shamming, but on getting close enough to touch it with his toe all doubts were at rest.

He carried the animal back to camp, but nobody there had ever seen anything like it before, and in fact most of them thought it was some kind of an fresh. Finally one of a Canadian lumberman, passing through the woods on his way to the village, was shown the animal and pronounced it to be a powhee. The old man said it was the first one he had seen in thirty years, and seemed greatly excited at the capture.

Alderman Mitchell had the powhee on inspection in his office last night, and the liveliest curiosity was aroused among the people to see a sight of such a rare animal. The Alderman has not fully made up his mind yet what to do with the powhee, but believes that he will present it to the Carpenter museum. It is doubtful if a specimen of such a rare animal has been obtained by any museum in the United States, and no doubt Alderman Mitchell could procure a snug little fortune for the powhee if he decided to sell it.—Pittsburg Press.

Following are the reports of the Loan and Building Association officials:

At the end of the year now closing, your board of directors makes its usual report.

This association is still, as at the time of our last year's report, confronted with a general condition of depression in business, and, in consequence, lack of inclination on the part of people to take any special energy in opening new enterprises or in extending old ones. Our citizens have been cautious in contracting obligations which they might find difficult to meet, and have felt like deferring to a more prosperous future the building of houses, the improvement of property, the enlargement of their business or of their accommodations. It is therefore, not to be wondered at, if during the past year we have not fully taken up our income. We shall have, as the report of the secretary shows a comparatively large amount of cash to hand. But as is worth of notice this, in spite of the drawbacks mentioned the association has since our last annual meeting lent $9,000, which is nearly equal to our annual income from dues. From this it is evident that the increase in our cash balance does not altogether come from inability to place our money on investment. It is partly caused by the payment of some of the loans made prior to, as in former years, and the fact that in the face of the quietness in business which prevails, our borrowers have in some instances been able to anticipate the maturity of their indebtedness and relieve themselves from it, speaks well for the general character of the people with whom we have dealt, and we hope that in a certain degree as evidence of the care with which our loans have been selected. CONTINENTALS DISLIKE US.

Continentals Fear Our Gaining Power and Envy Our Prosperity.

THESE REASONS ASCRIBED.

Under the head "The Continents Dislike of Americans" the Spectator (London) of July 16 has this to say:

"We are unable to doubt, though we are unwilling to believe, that the feeling of the Continent is genuinely unfriendly to America. The governments, of course, are fairly civil, but even they are beginning to talk among themselves, or sometimes openly, as in Count Goluchowski's speech, of the 'transoceanic peril,' but of the general aristocratic, middle class, and, indeed, popular feeling there can be little doubt. In newspapers, in clubs, in society, even in the streets, the dislike of Americans, that wish that they might be defeated, the desire if it were safe safe, to give them short shrift and small, is unmistakable. Everybody out of office on the Continent rides with Spain; everybody accepts stories to American discredit without inquiry; everybody assumes that in settling terms of peace America is bound to beg, cajole and soft-pedal, and to abstain from insisting on anything which she did not precisely say she intended to acquire. There is an indignant surprise at the idea of her keeping the Philippines or having the presumption to ask for Porto Rico. In fact the disposition betrayed by the Russian journalist who calls the defeat of Admiral Cervera a battle which the same Admiral is extolled for gallantly 'in bitterness' is the disposition of the majority of Continental men. They sympathize for their dislike sometimes, as indeed at even unjustifiable, but they feel it, and it very deeply. This is a state of opinion which may give dangerous hold the policies of the world, and, indeed, affect them now, and it is worth while to inquire what it exactly consists and how far it is likely to be permanent. We see no reason to believe that it is a passing gust of emotion. The Continental people are not devoted to Spain, and, except in France for economical reasons, are not specially interested in her prosperity. She is Catholic, no doubt, and the United States are Protestant; and there is a sub-feeling of Catholicism, which is a very limited force in modern politics, and does not prevent Austria from lunging herself in a moment of exceptional extremity with the chief of Continental Protestant Powers. Italy is not devoted to the Pope that its interests affect her judgment, and in Russia the usual trend of feeling is distinctly anti-Catholic, the reason for the severity shown to Poland. Nor can we believe that the unfriendliness is merely an manifestation of dislike for republics. The American of whom the Continental has any knowledge or direct contact, never was more celibate, and even if it had been matters do not greatly care about the institutions under which other nations, whether their rivals or not, may choose to live. If Russia were only weak, the majority might just as well for all the Germans would care. The unfriendliness must have some deeper source than these matters, perhaps between the Union and a European Power.

"We believe that it springs from precisely the same source as the dislike for Great Britain, herself—namely, the envy of a property considered overweening, dislike for the opening of Americans, and a vague apprehension akin to that felt in many Englishmen about Russia, that they will ultimately threaten very seriously—or is it the satisfactory—of less numerous rivals. Of these motives the former is, with the body of the people, the strongest. They hear incessantly from the emigrants, and read in the journals, of the marvellous wealth of Americans, of the success of their industries, of the expansion of their trade, of the general well-being produced by all the causes they see in the Yankees, and they call them, being none of the usual burdens, that they have no conscription, no need for watching their neighbors, no restraints upon their liberty and they deem them almost as strongly as Socialists resent the rich bourgeoisie. Why, they say, should Americans be so happy while Europeans are so miserable? They want taking down. This Hesiate is fostered by a belief that the Americans are not only no better than Europeans, but that they are morally and intellectually inferior to them, that their officials are corrupt, their clergy hypocritical, their business ends to be merely material indeed. They can do nothing for art, have never created a thing, and have produce no literature. They look on the Americans, in fact, much as a Mussulman looks on an Adjutant of Colenso, and, liked to think that such a people is of all mankind the wider have succeeded best in the opportunity for perfection, and has been most successful in uniting liberty and plenty. They cannot bear the peculiar American form of swagger, which is not like other people's own swagger or that of Englishmen, and misunderstand their directness and realism in speech as a form of hypocrisy. All people in the world, we have long so feel, are annoyed by the English habit of 'chaff,' and the Continental is so vexed by American 'cockiness,' and substitute humor, that he even fails to recognize what every Parisian sees, that it indicates to those who only demand equality is of the very essence of the special American character. He thinks them spiteful as well as selfish and looks upon their high tariffs, the result of a false political economy, as dictated by a wish to impoverish Europe and thrust it out of its natural right to compete for trade. The Continentals have, too, a certain fear of the Republic, an idea hardly formulated enough arising statesmen, but still visible dimming the motives, that it may attain to giant proportions, that it may one day arm itself, and that when it does the external commerce of the Continent, if not its internal independence, will be at the mercy of America. For all those reasons they hold Americans in detestation.

"These feelings have always existed since America became great, but the cover has been lifted off them by the shock of a new development. America had till late year one great merit in Continental eyes which almost compensated for her manners and her detestable prosperity. She was a counterpoise to Great Britain. It was a universally diffused impression that Washington disliked London, that the frequent twisting of the lion's tail was only a symptom of a deep seated in public, but the two Powers must in the end quarrel for Canada, and that then the heartbreaking of the world would be assuaged by the common pain of both. That pleasing prospect has been at all events blurred by the new cordiality between Great Britain and America, which may develop into an alliance that seems not only to statesmen, but to merchants and financiers of the Continent, to threaten to place the centre of the world's commerce in Anglo-Saxon hands. That is a horrible prospect to men who still believe at heart that all power transmutes itself into money, and who are well aware that if they themselves controlled all trade no rival would enjoy independence to mind as their lowings. The mere apprehension of such a result haunts able rivers who, he it remembered, are haunted by the Socialist specter, the fear that their countries will soon cease to produce enough for their increasing multitude of citizens, while it renders lower men savage in their estimate of the competing forces from which they have so much to fear. Imagine a 'tester' who finds another coster in possession of all the profitable street! Even the English, who do not fear nothing very keenly, find it hard to be just to Russia; to believe, for example, that she governs Central Asia much better than it was governed before; and men of the Continent more informed for their natural well-being are much more bitter than the English ever are. The French, therefore, ridicule the idea of an Anglo-Saxon alliance; the Russians assert that it is a dream, and the Germans, with menace in their tones, declare that it would be a world-peril. Meanwhile they they all think themselves released from any temptation to hypocrisy, and bring daily precisely the charges against America which they brought and bring against Great Britain. The Americans are declared, like the British, to be supremely selfish, to be intent on exploiting the world—and Cuba—for their own advantage, to be always choosing of non-existent forces, and, above all, it is a curious charge, considering what the writers of both nations habitually say about themselves—to be monstrously hypocritical. The embargo will after nothing for States are guided by their interests rather than their soldiers, that it tends, like many other circumstances, to divide the civilized world into two great camps, and to make Englishmen and Americans, who when left alone do not reflect very deeply about general positions, thoughtful with a newly born self-consciousness. 'Have we really so much of the great fund provided by nature that all others are regarding us with wolfish eyes?' Let us hope that it is not so but till we are certain let us keep each other company down the road."

TRANSPORT ARRIVES WITH CONVALESCENT SOLDIERS.

New York, July 29. The United States transport Leona, Capt. Wilder, arrived this morning at quarantine from Siboney, July 23, via Hampton Roads 28, bringing forty convalescent soldiers and two newspaper correspondents. Of the soldiers five were wounded at the front. On arriving at Hampton Roads July 27 the steamer, owing to her having 29 fever cases on board, was ordered to proceed to New York. There were some deaths during the voyage from Siboney to this port. The Leona brought twelve sacks of mail from the United States camp at Siboney. This mail will be disinfected at quarantine and forwarded to the New York postoffice. The following is a complete list of sick and wounded soldiers on board the Leona. The first 29 are fever patients, most of them convalescent.

Dr. Doty the health officer, boarded the Leona on arrival and found no the sick and wounded convalescent or improving. Two regiments were suffering with fever, principally of a malarial form. There was no surgeon on board and the men were attended by the ship's people and their own officers and comrades. Owing to the fact that the history of the cases showed that no temperature charts were taken or other records to guide the health officer and the fact that these men were ordered north because the authorities at Fortress Monroe would not allow them to land, Dr. Doty decided to remove the 29 patients to Swinburne Island and the convalescent well soldiers to Hoffman Island. If at the end of the 24 hours is found that none show symptoms of yellow fever, the Leona and all of her detained passengers will be released. Dr. Doty says from a brief examination he does not see any reason to apprehend that any of the cases are yellow fever, and that in all probability they will be released tomorrow. All the passengers were promptly transferred to the islands by the steamer James Widdows and the disinfection was immediately commenced at 10 o'clock this morning.

HOOLEY'S CHARGES

Denied by Duke of Somerset.

London, July 29. Denials of the allegations made by Ernest Terah Hooley, the company promoter, in the bankruptcy court, continue to be published here. The Duke of Somerset writes that he was of course ignorant that his co-directors had accepted money until he read Mr. Hooley's evidence and then he called needless to say, he forthwith retired from the directorate of the Dunlop Company.

The Earl of Warwick also emphatically denies that he received any of Hooley money.

CABLE SERVICE

Notice Issued by the Censor.

New York, July 29. The following notice has today been sent to all the cable companies in this city by Grant Squires, the military censor for this city:

"I hereby raise all restrictions heretofore imposed by me as censor, as to the character of new messages you may send abroad on all other cable routes excepting as only secretary of messages addressed to Spain and her colonies. It will be observed that this notice is intended to cover every instance only intended for transmission abroad and that all other foreign cable business and all domestic business of every sort are under the same restrictions now in force. (Signed) "Grant Squires, U. S. Military Censor."

An American newspaper man in London says that A. Conan Doyle, looks like a prize fighter or a bomb thrower, out of training.

MADRID DISCUSSES PROSPECTS OF PEACE.

Madrid, July 29, 9 A. M.—Referring to the prospects of peace, the Correspondencia, an independent Madrid newspaper, says today:

"While the government has asked for peace without stipulating a preliminary suspension of hostilities, it is supposed that an armistice will be declared as soon as the basis is agreed upon and pending a definite settlement. No basis has yet been submitted, but among the conditions mentioned is one relative to an international conference in London to arrange the future of the Philippine Islands. We do not believe the Americans will propose such a conference because they have no interest in doing so and could not derive any benefit therefrom. Neither is the Spanish government favorable to such a conference, considering the negotiations which it has opened directly with the United States, are better calculated to secure a good understanding between the two countries."

It is understood that the Spanish transports Isla de Panay and Isla de Luzon will sail from Cadiz today for Santiago de Cuba in order to embark the Spanish prisoners of war.

TALK OF THE DAY.

When the gunboat Gov. Russell sails from the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where she has been taking on her armament, she is very likely to attract as much attention as a battleship, for no more awkward looking boat has been mustered into the navy during the present war. The Gov. Russell began her career as a ferryboat, and as soon as she is properly equipped it is intended to send her to Cuba for blockade service. The use of a ferryboat for such work seems incongruous, and yet some of our ferryboats while were armed during the civil war proved themselves to be very serviceable boats for blockade duty and as patrol boats in some of the Southern rivers. The Gov. Russell is a good type of the modern ferryboat, with a strong hull and good stability, and if it came to close action she would be no mean antagonist. Her ramming power of a ferryboat was demonstrated very clearly in the North river four or five years ago. One of the ferryboats, in coming out of her slip, received a powerful iron steamship which happened to be passing and struck her in a very few minutes. The ferryboat was not under full speed at the time of the accident, and it was then suggested that such boats might be profitably for harbor defense in an emergency. The Gov. Russell will not be a graceful addition to our navy but experts say that she will be comfortable in a hot climate and also useful.

The commutation of the sentence of George W. Post, who was serving a ten years term in Clinton prison for defrauding John M. Peck of Albany, out of $7,000 in 1889, has brought to a close which career as a considerable one for a man in police records with the names of Tom O'Brien, and Big Woodward, Chief of Police Willard of Albany, has been a complete list of Post's swindles. The fact go to show $150,000, and no one but Post himself knows how much more he has secured by confidence games. Tom O'Brien, known as the King of Bunco Steerers, was Post's accomplice in defrauding Mr. Peck. O'Brien was given to Utica by a prison keeper and there he made his escape. Despite the vigilance of the police O'Brien got out of the country, and the last authentic news of him was the statement that he was serving a life sentence in a French prison for shooting Reed Waddell, a crook who had betrayed him to the Paris. O'Brien began life as a newsboy and his first crime was the robbery of a man in a train. O'Brien fairly won the title of King of the Bunco Steerers and whoever he fell into the hands of the police has friends enough to defend him. For several years before his conviction Post's criminal career was mixed up with that of O'Brien, and the two men worked many large swindles. The news of Post's release was telegraphed to the various police departments in this country, and in Boston the superintendent of the police wrote on Post's picture in the Rogues Gallery the inscription, "George W. Post, the brainiest and most dangerous bunco man in the world, now at large." Post's friendship with O'Brien has cost him his liberty and that he will bunco no more. If he settles in any large city he will undoubtedly be watched closely by the police, and his opportunities to follow his old career will be limited.

The ephemeral nature of a certain kind of fame or notoriety was well illustrated in New York on Saturday. One of the visitors of the Produce Exchange was Joseph Leiter, the young Chicago wheat speculator, whose every move was watched closely several months ago, promptly chronicled naturally in the newspapers here but in Europe. Stories of his college career and of his business profusion, his gigantic wheat deal, fortune, no matter how preposterous, their details and and young Mr. Leiter visited New York when apparently he was in control of the wheat market of the world he would have attracted almost as much attention as has Constantine Hobson. There was some curiosity in the Produce Exchange to see the young speculator who had been so daring in his operations, the newspapers were the only public announcement of his presence.

When Constantine Hobson finds time to do idle reading he will undoubtedly be much entertained by 5,000 newspaper clippings which have been gathered for him by an agency in this city. The statement has been made that when the long came Hobson ordered from an agency 100 clippings in case his name happened to be mentioned in newspapers. Whether this is true or not, it probably would have compared indifferently mention of his name, if he had not sailed the Merrimac into Santiago harbor. After that event every paper in Europe and America had a lot to say about him and the clippings piled up. Among the clippings are a few from Spanish newspapers which treated him as his bravery deserved but there are also German and Italian clippings which would be unpleasant reading for him if he did not know the animus which prompted their writers. One British paper says ingenuously that he deed was brave, but that, owing to the fine chivalry of the Spaniards, Hobson and upon ran no risk of being killed as the Spaniards duly wanted to sink the ship and not to injure the crew. This paper is published in Sheffield and it is a little hard for an American to believe, even if the Spaniards merely sent to sink the ship, that Spanish chivalry combined with Spanish marksmanship did not make the task of the Merrimac a dangerous proposition. Mr. Hobson has a large stock on hand him when he gazes on yellows clipping, many papers have printed of him, but the same cool nerve that he displayed on the Merrimac will undoubtedly pull him through.

Captain Whiting of the Monadnock, is called the "Hawaiian Maxwell" because he was there when Kamehameha died and Liunilio ascended the throne. Liunilio ascended the throne as Kalakaua in America in 1882, was in Honolulu in 1893 at the time of the change of government, married Kapiolani, and was there when Congress passed the annexation law.

President Kruger though he lives very simply, is said to be very wealthy, his fortune being estimated at about $3,000,000, besides its $40,000 a year for his services to the State.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

SOME GOSSIP FROM WASHINGTON AND ELSEWHERE.

(Contributed by Mrs. F. L. Tuck.)

FRIDAY MORNING MUSIC CLUB OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

It surely will interest the musical people of Bangor, who unmusical, to know something of the famous Friday morning music club of Washington, D. C. The object in forming this club was for the advancement of musical culture in Washington among those interested in music.

The intermingling of musical people is never so congenial as at a club, where the capabilities are brought forth in a manner never before known. It necessarily behoves together, companionable people, and pure enjoyment of the greatest of all arts is the result.

Miss Grace H. Boutelle, of our city, who has won a literary reputation in poetry and short stories, is a devoted member of this club. It speaks exceedingly well of Miss Boutelle's musical ability to be a member, as the executives of active members are limited only of recognized ability. Unfortunately but few people in Bangor have had the pleasure of hearing Miss Boutelle's piano playing. Her execution is exceptional and also very musical.

In the atmosphere of the Congressional Rotary, upon which she gave a most interesting lecture before the Ariadne Club, Miss Boutelle enjoys opportunities which few possess. This added greatly to her intense love for music, poetry and art.

The club of which she is so enthusiastic a member, is a serious one as the readers will have opportunity of judging. The meetings have been held every Friday morning at 10.30 for several years past in the Washington Club rooms, from November to the first of April. The club is the oldest social club of the city as the Friday morning club is the chief musical.

The former club consists of the wives of the President and Cabinet officers, in fact, all the official element of the capital, with other elite of the city. The corner room is given freely to the Friday morning club.

The room in the club house which is especially set aside for concerts and recitals is situated on 1710, I street.

It has a platform at the rear, well lighted from above, decorated with tapestries and Japanese embroideries which are loaned by the members of the Friday morning club. There are two pianos, an upright and grand on the platform.

The officers of the club are Mrs. Patten, president; Miss Hunt, vice president; Mrs. Bard, musical director; Mrs. Lent, assistant musical director; Miss Bradley, recording and corresponding secretary; Miss Bell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Patten, Mrs. Bard, Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Robbins, Mrs. Sewall form the membership committee, and it contains always of the president, musical director, assistant musical director and two others chosen from the club. Mrs. Dean is librarian.

The officers are chosen at the annual meeting which is held in April. There are six of the older members of the club who helped to organize and whose interest has never ceased since the beginning. The management of the club has never as yet been transferred to others, the original members directing the management to remain as it is.

The duties of the officers are the same as in any club. The assistant musical director has programmes of each meeting placed in the clinks, for reference, and passes the music for the chorus.

The accompanist for the ladies' chorus is engaged with a salary for the season.

The librarian has charge of the music at the club, but the books which the club uses are kept at a private residence where the members exchange at certain periods. The library of books began this last year, and is enjoyed very much by the club. It of course adds zest and broadens the musical life.

The membership committee stands also for a board of directors. Besides its regular duties it decides on applications for those wishing to become active members. There are active, passive, associate and honorary members. The active members only contribute to the programmes given. At present there are twenty-nine, eight passive, eleven associate and three honorary members.

It is very pleasant to know the club has a ladies' chorus, similar to the Boston Club of Boston. It includes all active, passive and associate members, and the chorus practice is held promptly at 10.30 every Friday morning, and is really the beginning of the daily meeting. Practice lasted for a little over half an hour. Delightful part songs, trios and quartettes are sung, at least rehearsals, also heavier compositions arranged for female voices. The chorus sings in public only when the club gives complimentary concerts to the Washington Club through the winter, of which two are in the afternoon and one in the evening.

After the chorus practice, a musical talk or lecture is given by one of the members which lasts nearly a half hour. For the past winter the orchestra has been the subject of the several talks, and the members feel that their knowledge of different instruments and their use in the orchestra is surprisingly expanded.

Following the musical talk comes the regular programme of an hour's length.

The club is divided into sections—A and B—who play alternately either in solo or ensemble work. In the frequent playing, the necessitates constant and regular practice, which means undivided interest. In case there is failure to appear a fine of twenty-five cents is paid. This rule is strictly enforced, and with great success.

Members send the names of their selections to the musical director by Wednesday morning for the programme of that week, and I say are asked to gather such information about the compositions they interpret as will increase the interest of the performance. There are many talented members in the club who choose by mutual consent the ones most congenial as to touch and temperament to play quantette music for two pianos. This has been one of the chief delights of the members during the last winter.

A recital hour is appointed each week for participants in a room of one of the largest private houses in Washington. This is also freely given. Other ensemble work is had, when and each is rehearsed. Several ladies play these instruments remarkably well, and they give much variety to the programmes with solo and ensemble work, added to this are ladies' vocal quartettes and trios.

Unfortunately the name Boutelle is expressed here in all clubs; if there are relatives, they are usually the shining.

Of the vocalists special mention is given Mrs. Baird, who was a favorite pupil of Jenny Lind-Goldschmidt.

Mrs. King is one of the best pianists, and Miss Kimball, who is a direct that endeavor pupil of Leschitzky.

Business meetings are held once a month. The dues are three dollars for active members, five dollars associate. The fines are twenty-five cents for absences, and ten cents for tardiness. These rules which are indispensable to clubs as a rule, are a success in progressive clubs. The money has added greatly to the treasury and does away with all assessments.

The music has been for very high order. As early as 1893 miscellaneous programmes were given. Once a month an historical programme should be given, beginning at the origin of music, and giving compositions of the colonial days. This was an unusually wise undertaking for a club to begin with the history of music for so much is understood in a clearer manner by the only true foundation.

Every twilight the music of the Boston Symphony programme was reviewed and studied as far as possible.

The feature of the club's work for 1894 was the orchestra of today; the instruments, composing it, their history, uses, etc. Illustrations as far as possible were given. This is the outline similar to a course given by Mr. W. J. Henderson so successfully in New York at the M. T. N. A.

A course of study of the Wagnerian dramas was taken up in 1895 by a course of four lectures given by Mr. H. E. Krehbiel, critic of the New York Tribune. They were "How to Listen to Music," "The Origin and Nature of the Lyric Drama," "Richard Wagner and his Art Work," and Wagner's Comedy, "Die Meistersinger." The illustrations were played by Mrs. King.

Mr. Krehbiel gives a course of four lectures to the club each winter, and has been a vast aid to its knowledge of the meaning and literature of music.

The special work of the club for 1896 and '97 was some points in the history of music: The history of the scale, the evolution of notation, the study of the theory of music, and the present standard of pitch.

Mr. Krehbiel's lectures were "Dramatic Dances" and "Children's Games." He began by saying: "The primitive dance was a play, and the primitive play a dance. In the old conception of dancing every motion was a word, and rest was as eloquent as motion."

Children's games preserve the old purpose and manner. Romances, of ancient mythologies in plays and songs like "Ring Around a Rosy" and as German ginated "London Bridge is Falling Down." The bridge in folk-lore and history.

Children's games recall ancient social and political customs; courtship and marriage; marriage by theft and by purchase, like "Sowing the Millet Seed," and "Here Come Three Lords Out of Spain."

The next lecture was "Wandering Ballads." Beautiful and enduring legends are universal property. Fairy tales are fragments of ancient mythologies.

The following lecture was Classicism and Romanticism in Music, and the last Wagner's Music Drama.—Parsifal—the blending of Buddhistic and Christian plots.

The programmes of music for that year were miscellaneous entirely. Several interesting numbers were played. A Sonata for violin and piano Op. 67, by Miss Sewall and Mrs. King, also Bach, Sonata No. 2 by these ladies. This sonata is very expressive, and lofty in style. It seems to be a pathetic colloquy between violin and the treble of the piano. The colloquy is in strict canon form throughout and is almost unrivaled in that time-honored form. The playing of Schumann's "Romance" by Miss Bell and the Impromptu in A flat were exceptionally good.

Miss Elizabeth Boutelle, now Mrs. W. W. Palmer, sang a Massenet and De Koven song.

Miss Grace Boutelle played the poetical and dreamy Nocturne Op. 37, No. 2, by Chopin. The Schumann quintette for piano and strings Op 44, was unusually fine.

The duo for pianos, "Pas de Grenadiers," Chaminade, played by Miss Williams and Miss Bell was fascinating, as is all of Chaminade's music.

A programme was given of music in the 17th century, of Bach, 1685; Rameau, 1698, Gluck, 1782; Handel, 1685, and Scarlatti; the latter the Three Phantasticstucke for violin and piano was played.

Miss Boutelle played that wonderfully beautiful Grieg Sonata Opus 1.

A unique number was at one time played on the Junko Board by Mrs. Patten. It was Chaminade's "Scarf Dance." This keyboard is annually exhausted by Madame Freyth at the M. T. N. A.

It was interesting to see that "Noel" by Augusta Holmes, sung by Miss Rice was on one programme. This composer is called the greatest woman composer living. The chorus sang "Welcome Love by Spring," by Schumann.

A group of songs by Franz, one of the greatest of song writers, was sung by Mrs. Dean.

In 1896 and '97 the programmes were given in chronological order, beginning with Purcell, in 1658, ending with Paderewski.

An American composer day was given, which was loyal to, say the least, to our much deserving composers.

In 1897 children's concerts programmes were given with a programme of Italian music of the 16th and 18th centuries, also French, German and English, of the 17th and 18th centuries. Perhaps the most enjoyable were the three programs of concerted music consisting of quartets, duets, and the trio from Elijah, "Lift Thine Eyes," sung by Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Bard and Miss Bradley. The most popular number was the Four Canons by Heinrich, sung by the chorus. First Canon in unison; Canon in the second below; Canon by inversion and Canon by augmentation and diminution.

The "beautiful Wedding" and "Ich Grolle Nicht" by Schumann, sung by Miss Shepard, may indeed have been a pleasure. The latter is the most dramatic song in existence.

Many numbers of Brahms, sung and played bespeak the ability of the executive and artistic ability of the members.

The Woman's Farewell and the Fire Music by Wagner arranged for two pianos, was played by Mrs. Byrnes, Mrs. Roberts, Miss Boutelle and Mrs. Patten. It has been played twice in the Berlioz Club and is an unusually good arrangement.

A string quartette from Haydn, the theme that varyingly from the Kaiser quartette, of which the Austrian hymn is the theme, was also played on our Haydn programme.

This is not a tenth part of the music played at this club. It is only to emphasize the wonderful range and broad focus it has worked upon and has been of incalculable value to its members.

Among the delightful features of the club at late sessions are given throughout the winter, under its auspices. All the renowned artists are procured. The Kneisel Quartette is engaged frequently, and it may be said that the Friday morning club has had nearly every artist that has come to Washington. The money is raised by subscription for each concert.

This is the principal musical club in the city and also most active. Like other clubs, sections have arisen and offshoots spring up, but the Friday morning club remains intact. The interest grows instead of diminishes, and last winter was the most successful ever known in the history of the club.

When one thinks of the gaiety and social functions of Washington life, it is pleasant to know that in spite of all those society duties the love of music is so strong that even these cannot sway the desire for study in this fascinating art. It is all the more commendable on this account that such splendid results have been attained. It certainly is a model club for activity and noble purpose that other clubs could well follow.

NOTES.

A great deal of music seems to have been given at Newport, R. I., during the present season. The Philharmonic Society gave Handel's "Messiah" on January 20th, and Haydn's "Creation" May 19th. The chorus numbered about fifty, under the direction of Mr. Alfred G. Langley, with accompanists Miss Fannie Orff Berry, Mrs. Chas. E. Lawton, Miss Clarkson Crosby, Miss Marian C. Dowling and Mr. Alfred W. Freeborn. In April two chamber concerts were given by philharmonics, with very pleasing programmes. During the entire season various programmes have been given by the pupils of Mrs. Treeborn, at which an uncommonly good range of selections have been presented.

The Schubert Club, of Beloit, Wis., a ladies' singing society of about thirty members, directed by Rev. W. W. Sleeper, of Beloit, gave a programme made up entirely of Mrs. H. H. A. Beach's compositions. The programme included several part songs, songs, piano solos and violin solos, and concluded with the short cantata, "The Rose of Avondale." Miss Eleanor Bliss, of Madison, the only visiting participant, gave great delight by her singing of the "Cuckoo," "Autumn," "Bestany" and the three "Shakespeare Songs." The entire programme was very creditably done and proved to be of great interest.

EASTPORT NEWS.

Too Much Enterprise—The New Steamer Lubec.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Eastport, July 28. The St. Andrews Picnic Club held its annual picnic on the grounds of L. L. Sampson at Campobello today. The Viking brought a large crowd from Lubec and later the Rose Standish landed another party here. The second organization has been in existence seventeen years, and its members include about all the residents of the above Bay of Fundy county, who, once a year, unite in a grand family affair.

Three young men of the neighboring town of Pembroke borrowed a horse and came to this city yesterday to attend the ball game. By the time they were ready for home they were pretty full of admiration for the ball players as well as liquor, and proceeded to drive the horse about town at a furious rate, one of them holding the reins while the other two piled the fish. After they had made a few turns about town a warrant was sworn out and Sheriff Martin captured the men, landing them in the station. This morning they were taken before Trial Justice Lamont, who made the usual collection, and the men departed for their home, leaving the borrowed team here.

The steamer Lubec carried two hundred of the Washington street Baptist Sunday school to North Lubec this afternoon on their annual outing.

Wheeler's Orchestra seems to have the call just now, and is quite busy playing for parties, dances, etc., in this city and neighboring towns. The orchestra is one of the best in the vicinity, and is well supplied with all the latest productions, while hard work and constant practice enable them to render the music in a truly artistic manner.

A moonlight sail in the handsome steamer Lubec is announced for Tuesday evening next. The excursion is under the management of and will be accompanied by the Campobello Brass Band, leaving Lubec at 7.45; North Lubec at 8; Eastport at 8.30; Wolfe's Point, 8.45; and the Dyer-wood pier at 9; returning at about two hours.

In a private advice to people in this city N. L. Nowcomb, of New York, states that the steamer of his line will be ready to open the route to this city on Aug. 1st.

The International Steamship Company announces a series of summer excursions between this city and St. John on Saturdays returning on Monday, tickets for which will be issued at less than one fare.

Mrs. Edward Archibald was a passenger home by steamer from Boston this afternoon.

John York and wife, of Dennysville, were in the city today to meet a party of friends who arrived by steamer.

The auction sale of the buildings on the new schoolhouse lot will be held on Tuesday next.

The receipt of fish in the factories has been light for the past few days.

The syndicate promoters are still in town and are waiting for the arrival of Mr. Gifford, the leading attorney in the deal. It is said that something will drop in a few days.

The little town of Dennysville, which for time immemorial has been free from intoxicating liquor, has been greatly annoyed at times by the railroad workmen importing intoxicants and getting the worse for their use.

The next attraction which Mr. Shea will offer at the Opera House will be the engagement of Joseph Greene, beginning the week of Aug. 8th. Mr. Greene is a prime favorite with the theatre going people of this city.

A new Salvation lassie arrived this afternoon, to take charge of the local corps.

The base ball match was won this afternoon by the Rogues by a score of 27 to 10. The team left by boat for home, the trip to Calais failing through, as the guides could not be arranged. Neither game was characterized by good ball playing, and as both teams are able to put up a better game the spectators were disappointed. Eddie Connolly, the lightweight boxer of St. John, was with the club, and played in the games. His presence drew many people, who are prone to gaze on the possessor of notoriety, rather than the price ring or other sources.

CLIPS AND COMMENTS.

An old soldier of Detroit has a couple of stories of the late war that will not be preserved in the archives of accepted history.

"In the pioneer brigade to which I belonged," relates the veteran, "there was a Wisconsin man who seemed to have the gift of perpetual good feeling. After Bragg had left Tullahoma on his way to some safer locality, we pushed on to Elk river to repair a bridge. The Wisconsin man, whom I remember as Hank, went down the stream a little way to take a swim and while he was disporting himself in the water five of Bragg's boys appeared on the bank, covered him with their guns and cordially invited him to come in out of the wet. He promptly pleaded to the persuasion and dressed while laughingly telling his captors that if there had been four of them he would have decided to recognize them as a superior land force and fought them from the water.

"While the prisoner was awaiting an order to march the five surprised him by stacking their arms, notifying him that they surrendered and asking to be taken into camp. Like hundreds of others in lower Tennessee during the summer of 1863 they were tired of the fight and glad to get within our lines. The first time I was at a national encampment I came across the hero of the occasion, and I'll be blowed if he wasn't telling in solemn earnest how he made a sudden dash from those five Johnnies, surrounded them, disarmed them and marched them to headquarters. Such stories are apt to grow even with one who participated in them."—New Haven Register.

The schooner stranded in Maryland not long ago to Commodore Schley with a substantial testimonial, probably in the form of a homestead in Baltimore, is rapidly growing to most gratifying proportions. General Joseph Spring, of Cumberland, where the movement first started, has written in the name of the Committee of Organization to Mayor Malster of Baltimore, thanking him for the interest he is taking in the matter and asking his co-operation in the efforts to honor Maryland's hero. "We up here in the mountains," he writes, "deem it peculiarly fitting that this movement should have its originating here in view of the fact that Hon. Henry W. Hoffman, the then distinguished Representative of this district, in Congress, who appointed Commodore Schley to the Naval Academy, was born, lived and died in this county." In another place he says, "We have not yet attempted to say what the testimonial will be—that depends upon the response the people make, upon the number of dollars we secure for the purpose. I think we ought to secure without much trouble $20,000 to $30,000 from the whole State. * * * We intend preserving the names and addresses of all who subscribe and when we have completed put them all in a neatly bound book and present Commodore Schley with it also when we present the testimonial.

An autograph fiend in Pontiac, Mich., recently wrote to Admiral Cervera asking that famous Spaniard to send his signature. He also inclosed a dollar and invited the Admiral to have a good cigar for his trouble. He has received the following letter in reply:

"My Dear Sir: The Admiral (my father) directs me to tell you that he takes great pleasure in sending you his autograph, as he does. However much he would like to smoke a good cigar (with you if he smoked) you will understand that he cannot take the dollar for that and directs me to return the check. Yours, Angel Cervera."

TRACADIE LUMBER COMPANY

Six per cent First Mortgage Coupon Bonds

Principal and semi-annual interest payable January and July at our office. Denomination $1,000. Due in series not later than January 1902.

The Tracadie Lumber Company was organized under the laws of the State of Maine.

Its officers are among the most conservative and successful business men of Bangor.

The Capital Stock of the company is $300,000 fully paid in.

The Bonds are secured by a first and only lien upon the property owned by the company, which consists of extensive and very valuable tracts of pine timber and timber property in Gloucester County, New Brunswick.

The Legality of the issue of these bonds has been favorably passed upon by Messrs. Appleton & Chapin of this city and C. F. Coster, Queen's Counsel, of St. John, whose written opinion we have, attesting the validity.

SINKING FUND.

The mortgage under which these bonds are issued requires that a sinking fund of $2,000 be set apart for every 1,000 feet of logs cut from the lands, to be paid each year to the trustees for the redemption of the bonds by its terms. This is a very strong provision and commends itself to prospective purchasers.

We have detailed expert opinion covering the extent and extent of the properties which clearly demonstrates that the bonds are securely protected and affords such ample margin for loss as to recommend them as a safe investment.

The bonds already sold are in strong hands but we can sell some of our more conservative clients. The investment will bear the closest scrutiny.

We offer a limited amount of the above at prices to yield about 5 per cent.

A complete descriptive circular containing expert's report, attorney's opinion with maps and statistics, furnished upon application.
